Whilst on the water, our staff will cover

- Capsize of craft
- Dangers of hands being trapped between boats, boat and jetty, boat and other craft
- Dangers of moving paddles whilst in close company with other people and 'standing up' scenarios.

Our staff are in charge of the safety of all craft and have experience of dealing with a variety of situations. However, as disruptive/ uncooperative participants may ultimately jeopardize the safety of themselves or others, we have to insist on a socially acceptable standard of behaviour – which at a minimum means you will listen to instructions and then follow them. If at any stage our staff feel that the behaviour of any member(s) of a group is compromising the safety of the session, we reserve the right to stop the activity. In this situation you will still be liable to pay the full amount due.

Any incidents or accidents occurring whilst undertaking activities must be reported to our staff and an incident record made immediately on return to shore.

Any complaints or suggestions should be addressed to the partners, John or Sarah Platt.
